How To Borrow or not to Borrow Money from a Friend That is the Question

There are actually a number of options available for us to get the much needed cash. More often than not though, many turn to family and friends for help especially for emergency situations. Luckily for some there are friends and relatives ready to lend a hand to get them out of the troublesome situation, fund a necessary expense or help them realize their dream. But problems may arise when repayment time comes. If negotiations had been done in a rush or in every informal way, repayment details may not be clear or defined leading to unfulfilled expectations on the part of the lender-friend. This can lead to a possible rift in the friendship especially if the amount involved is a bit huge.
