

Life and Teachings Abbas Effendi: A Study or Me Religion or the Babis, or Behals Founded by Persian Bab and by His Successors, Beha Ullah and Abbas Effendi (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Life and Teachings Abbas Effendi: A Study or Me Religion or the Babis, or Behals Founded by Persian Bab and by His Successors, Beha Ullah and Abbas Effendi. In the first edition of this book a chapter was given to the philosophy and psychology of the religion. It was there stated that a conditional after-life only was taught - an afterlife dependent upon the good use made of present-life opportunities. This portion of the book elicited a good deal of discussion and was thought by many to be an inaccurate statement of the teachings of the faith. While much pains had been taken to reach a correct understanding of this matter, translations and retranslations having been repeatedly made, I was aware that the abstruse nature of the subject and the consequent difficulties of translation had made errors only too possible, and I accordingly availed myself of the first opportunity to revisit Syria and lay the question before Abbas Effendi - or, as he prefers to be called, Abdul Beha - himself. This I was able to do in December, 1909, just seven years after my first visit to those hospitable shores.
